PREFACE

To safeguard and promote the development of children at an age that is crucial for their physical, mental and emotional development and decisive for their learning abilities - such is the aim of the Young Child and the Family Environment Project of UNESCO. The project, proposed by the Director-General, was approved by the Executive Board and adopted by the General Conference of UNESCO in November 1989.

The challenge is enormous because of the demographic pressures and poverty that the greater part of our world experiences. Yet low-cost and effective options for financing early childhood programmes are available. Their implementation depends more on creating adequate political and social will than on any other factor.

In order to encourage a new resolve and open new channels of international communication, the YCF Project has compiled a worldwide database of institutions involved in early childhood development and education. The present directory is a selection of 670 institutes whose activities significantly promote an improvement in the situation of children. It is hoped that the information gathered here will help to facilitate contacts among institutions working in the field and convince them of the immense convergence of interests among those who care for families and children in both North and South.

UNESCO would like to thank all the institutions who answered the questionnaire for their co-operation in providing the information for this publication. In particular, the assistance and encouragement of the Consultative Group on Early Childhood Care and Development, the International Society for the Study of Behavioral Development (ISSBD), the International Union for Psychological Sciences (IUPSyS), the Centre International de l'Enfance in Paris, the Bernard van Leer Foundation in The Hague, and the Hogg Foundation for Mental Health in Austin, Texas is acknowledged with many thanks.

Although the data contained in this Directory have been repeatedly checked, errors and omissions may still exist. All modifications and additions should be entered on the questionnaire included in the volume and returned to the address at the foot of this page.

Assurer et encourager le développement de l'enfant à un âge qui est crucial pour son développement physique, mental et émotionnel et qui est décisif pour ses capacités d'apprentissage - tel est le but du Projet de l'Unesco sur le Jeune Enfant et le Milieu Familial. Le projet, proposé par le Directeur Général, fut approuvé par le Conseil Exécutif et adopté par la Conférence Générale de l'Unesco en novembre 1989.

La tâche est énorme en raison des pressions démographiques et de la pauvreté accrue que la plupart des pays subissent. Cependant, des options efficaces et peu coûteuses pour financer des programmes pour la prime enfance existent. Leur application dépend plus de la création d'une volonté politique et sociale adéquate que de tout autre facteur.

Afin de faire naître une nouvelle volonté et de créer de nouveaux courants internationaux de communication, le Projet a élaboré une base de données mondiale sur les organisations actives dans le domaine du développement et de l'éducation de la prime enfance. Le présent répertoire est une sélection de 670 organisations dont les activités contribuent d'une manière efficace à l'amélioration de la situation des enfants. Nous espérons que l'information rassemblée dans ce répertoire aidera à faciliter les contacts entre organisations travaillant dans ce domaine et à les convaincre de la convergence des intérêts de tous ceux qui s'occupent des familles et des enfants au Nord comme au Sud.

L'Unesco voudrait remercier toutes les organisations qui ont répondu au questionnaire pour fournir l'information nécessaire pour ce répertoire. Ces remerciements s'adressent en particulier au Consultative Group on Early Childhood Care and Development, à l'International Union for Psychological Sciences (IUPSyS), à l'International Society for the Study of Behavioral Development (ISSBD), au Centre International de l'Enfance à Paris, à la Fondation Bernard van Leer à la Haye et à la Hogg Foundation for Mental Health de Austin, Texas, pour l'assistance et le soutien qu'ils ont apportés à ce projet.

Bien que l'information contenue dans ce répertoire ait été vérifiée à plusieurs reprises, des erreurs et des omissions peuvent toujours se produire. Toutes corrections, suppressions ou adjonctions peuvent être mentionnées dans le questionnaire joint qui doit être retourné à l'adresse suivante:

The Young Child and the Family Environment Project: An Introduction

Wolfgang Schwendler and John Bennett

1. Mandate and Objectives

The Young Child and the Family Environment Project, proposed by the Director-General, was approved by the Executive Board and adopted at the twenty-fifth session of the General Conference of UNESCO in November 1989. Within UNESCO, the Project is intersectoral, that is, one of its chief functions is to co-ordinate activities undertaken by the Organization in favour of the family and pre-school children. It is mandated also to enhance interagency co-operation with UNICEF, UNFPA, WHO, relevant NGOs and private funding agencies in order to ensure the greatest complementarity and avoid duplication of efforts. All disciplines within UNESCO's mandate are called to contribute to its implementation in the next six years.

By family environment is meant both family and community. Family is understood in its widest sense, that is, in all its configurations - traditional, extended, nuclear or single-parent. It is any group or person "who takes care of and cares for a child during a lifetime" (Professor Uri Brofenbrenner). The working definition of the family formulated by the United Nations Committee on Civil and Political Rights, namely, "a group of persons ... regarded as a family under the legislation and practice of a State" is adopted.[1] In the Project, the word "environment" is added in order to broaden the concept beyond its simple legal definition and thereby to include not only the broad family grouping but also the community and society in which both child and family have their roots.

The broad objective of the Project is to safeguard and promote the development of children at an age that is crucial for their physical, mental and emotional development and decisive for their learning abilities. In principle, therefore, any theme affecting young children and the family in any social context throughout the world can be considered. However, given the dramatic and terrible needs of children in deprived situations and countries, Project activities have tended to concentrate on children at risk: for example, children sheltering in refugee camps in areas of war or the children of Tchernobyl. It is becoming increasingly clear that such risk situations are destined to increase in a world where for a multitude of reasons, many developing countries are no longer able to meet the basic health and learning needs of their children and families.

In order to guide the Project, the Director-General appointed in May 1990, a Scientific Advisory Group (SAG) made up of eminent scholars, practitioners and representatives of sister agencies and foundations who have distinguished themselves in early childhood care, development and education. Due to meet once a year, the Group advises UNESCO on the overall orientation of the Project, evaluates its progress, and helps make it visible to potential funders, policy and decision-makers in Member States. Throughout the year, the Director of the Project maintains close contact with all Group members to assure a steady crossflow of information. As stipulated in the terms of reference, members of the SAG participate in their personal capacities once a year at a meeting at UNESCO headquarters in order to ascertain needs, examine approaches, set criteria, monitor and evaluate chosen activities, and assess the feasability of Project proposals. Their first meetings took place at Unesco Headquarters in Paris in May 1990 and April 1991.

[1] The full text of the Committee's comment on Article 23 of the Covenant reads: "the Committee notes that the concept of the family may differ from State to State, and even from region to region within a State, and it is not therefore possible to give the concept a standard definition. However, the Committee emphasizes that when a group of persons is regarded as a family under the legislation and practice of a State, it must be given the protection referred to in Article 23. Consequently, States Parties should report on how the concept and scope of the family is construed or defined in their own society and legal system."

The following are members of the Scientific Advisory group:

- Dr Jairo Arboleda, Director, Save the Children Fund, Bogotà, Colombia.
- Dr James Himes, Director, UNICEF International Child Development Centre, Florence, Italy.
- Prof. Wayne Holtzman, President, Hogg Foundation for Mental Health, Austin, Texas, United States
- Prof. Michel Manciaux, Director, Institute of Child Development, University of Nancy, France.
- Dr Robert Myers, Co-ordinator, Interagency Consultative Group on Early Childhood Care and Development, New York, United States
- Prof. John Nkinyangi, Graduate School of Education and African Studies Centre,University of California, Los Angeles, U.S.A.
- Dr David Ottoson, Scientific Secretary, Wenner-Gren Foundation, Stockholm, Sweden
- Dr P.M. Shah, Maternal and Child Health Division, WHO, Geneva, Switzerland
- Dr Fred Wood, Director of Education, Save the Children International, Westport, Conn., United States
- Prof. Tariho Fukuda, Professor of Social Work, Meiji Gakuin University, Tokyo, Japan.
- Professor J. Goodnow, Dept. of Education, Macquarie University, Sydney, Australia.
- Dr Ludmila F. Obouhova, Dept. of Psychology, University of Moscow, U.S.S.R.
- Dr In'am Mufti, Director General, Noor Al Hussein Foundation, P.O. Box 926687, Ammam, Jordan.

Four substantive areas have been selected for the Project: nutrition and early childhood stimulation; child-rearing practices in situations of rapid social and economic change; childhood disabilities; and pre-school development and education. UNESCO will support Member States, the international community of researchers and practitioners of child care, parents and caregivers of infants and young children to improve practice and evolve innovative, community based and integrated programmes in any of these four areas. It will do so by intervention at one or other of the following levels:

- at the interagency and intergovernmental level by participating in United Nations or other international initiatives in favour of children and the family;

- through technical aid and assistance to Member States in the design, development and implementation of innovative, integrated programmes in early child development, particularly child-care education services and national and community-based family support programmes;

- as a clearinghouse for information and exchange by promoting the use of existing knowledge on the development of the young child and its family environment and by disseminating information on successful policies, programmes and activities.

2. Interagency and intergovernmental participation

The United Nations has formulated many instruments and policies in favour of families and children. One of the earliest statements is contained in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights: " the family is a fundamental group of society and is entitled to protection by society and State". Again, as recently as November 1989, the Convention on the Rights of the Child was adopted by the United Nations General Assembly. The Convention includes fundamental provisions concerning four main areas of children's rights: survival, development, protection and participation.

Yet despite such international legal instruments and notwithstanding the protection afforded to the family in the constitutional law of most States, there still exist relatively few explicit measures that improve in practical terms the situation of families with children at pre-school level. Developing countries have seldom the resources to provide institutional structures and services for families, while many wealthier countries fail to give priority to public education, not to mention to the needs of pre-school children. Yet, crucial demographic, economic, legal, labour and social security issues are linked with family and child policies.

In such a context, the UNESCO Project sees as one of its primary responsibilities, the support of United Nations policy in favour of the family and children and the integration of early childhood programmes into long-term social and economic planning. Already, the Project has prepared a short commentary on the Convention on the Rights of the Child. The Project helped also in the preparation of the World Conference on Education for All, held at Jomtien in March 1990, and as noted below, continues to support the basic learning needs programme: "Child Health, Nutrition and School Participation". It marked the World Summit for Children of 30 September 1990 by the publication of Dr Robert Myers' book Toward a Fair Start for Children and by producing with the United Nations, Unicef and WHO a Statistical Wall Chart on Children. The International Year of the Family of 1994 is likewise being prepared in full co-operation with the United Nations, and the Young Child and the Family Database and Directory is being placed at the disposal of the IYF Secretariat.

As mentioned in the section that follows, support to Member States particularly in Africa, has not been forgotten. Co-operation with several Ministries of Planning, Education and Health is underway. In such co-operative ventures, the Project has continually put forward a multi-faceted view of child development, as recommended by its YCF Scientific Advisory Group.

3. Technical aid

The first meeting of the Scientific Advisory Group proposed that in the area of technical aid, the Project should support innovative and integrated programmes in early childhood developement that were cost-effective, financially feasible and took advantage of effective local technology. Based solidly in local communities, such programmes would, on the one hand, aim at improving the psychological, social and cultural development of children and on the other, child health, nutrition and school participation.

To date, the Project has proposed both immediate and long-term programme activities. In the first category are urgent actions to alleviate the plight of children both in Cambodian refugee camps along the Thai border and in Romanian orphanages. Again, a programme for the children affected by the Tchernobyl disaster has beeen drawn up and has received external funding from a European foundation.

Among the more long-term projects is the development, in association with established service providers, of training packages for three different countries or sub-regions on the early detection and prevention of childhood disability. These packages will be used by community workers, preschool educational services, primary health personnel and parents. The countries approached so far are Uganda, Mali, Malawi, and, in Asia, Sri Lanka.

The Project is also co-operating with the Education Sector at UNESCO in the project:"Child Health, Nutrition and School Participation". The basic aim of the project is to gain an understanding of the connection between children's health and educational outcomes, and to test possible intervention strategies to improve child health and learning opportunities. Already, governments in four countries - Zimbabwe, Kenya, Jamaica and Thailand - are involved in planning adequate school health and nutrition programmes. Thus a collection of baseline data from about 500 families in Kenya is underway on how to give children - in situations of great austerity - the benefit of basic education.

At the moment, an international training workshop relating to childhood disabilities and special education is being organized conjointly with the United Nations Development Programme, the United Nations Statistical Office, UNICEF and the Unesco Regional Office in Bangkok. The workshop will take place in September 1991 and will play host to some thirty statisticians from developing countries. A number of other technical aid projects for the coming year will be submitted to the Scientific Advisory Group for its approval at its meeting in April.

4. Information exchange activities

The Informal Inter-agency Consultation of Statisticians

In early 1990, experts from the UN Statistical Office, UNICEF, WHO, the World Bank, the International Children's Centre and UNESCO gathered at UNESCO Headquarters in Paris to assess existing data on early childhood development. It was the first meeting of its kind in this area and marked the beginning of a fruitful interaction on child-related statistics among the agencies concerned. A concrete result of the meeting was the preparation of a statistical chart on children entitled: Statistical Chart on Children : Early Child Development and Learning Achievement, 1990 published for and disseminated at the World Summit for Children, held in New York in September 1990. Through the presentation of nine indicators, the chart demonstrates how child, family and community factors such as infant mortality rates, malnutrition, female illiteracy, and access to health services, all have a powerfull impact on school enrollment rates and educational progress. The most recent data from more than 160 countries are listed.

The Coordinators' Notebook

In order to avoid duplicating information efforts on behalf of child development, the Project has joined efforts with the Interagency Consultative Group on Early Childhood Care and Development in the publication of a newsletter. For several years, this outstanding institution has published an esteemed and widely-read quarterly review entitled, The Coordinators' Notebook. It includes in each issue a state-of-the-art presentation on a topic central to early childhood care, rubrics concerning special events, network news and national childcare programmes, and notices on information resources, publications and meetings. From now on, the Notebook will have a regular input from the YCF Project and will be disseminated both through the child-related networks of the Consultative Group and UNESCO.

Publications

In addition to the present Directory and both the Statistical Chart and the Coordinators' Notebook mentioned above, the Project has been active in publishing research results and basic information concerning the young child and the family. Dr. Robert Myers, Coordinator of the Interagency Consultative Group on Early Childhood Care and Development, prepared the first YCF publication Toward a Fair Start for Children for the World Summit for Children. Looking beyond the problem of infant mortality, Dr Myers shows that:

- the need and demand for early childhood development programmes is growing dramatically, fuelled by the increasing pace of social change and associated shifts in, for example, women's labour force participation, family composition and structure;

- low-cost and effective options for financing early childhood programmes are available. The problem is more one of creating political and social will than of resources.

At the present moment, 8,500 copies of the booklet have been published in English. A Spanish version with a print run of 2,500 is being prepared by the UNESCO SHS/Caracas Office. The translation and production of a French version has been agreed through the External Affairs Ministry of Canada for a print run of 3,000. The Soviet Delegation at UNESCO wishes to publish a Russian version in the national Teachers' Weekly (weekly dissemination: 600,000 copies). An Arabic version is being prepared by the Unesco regional Office for Arab States (UNEDBAS) in Amman, Jordan, while a Chinese version is being negotiated. The interest is understandable as it is an excellent and most practical guide to early child development. Dr Myers is also publishing a volume entitled The Twelve who Survive through Routledge of London with the assistance of UNESCO.

Another publication, Early Childhood Care and Education: a world survey, is in press. Compiled by UNESCO from the analysis of a questionnaire sent to its Member States, the study gives an overview of the current state of pre-school education in eighty-eight countries worldwide, and highlights the major trends and lines of development in early childhood care and education.

The YCF Database and Directory

The present YCF Directory and Database, was begun in June 1990. Addresses of institutions for the survey were assembled from various sources, including the Interagency Consultative Group on Early Childhood Care and Development, the Bernard van Leer Foundation and from an earlier publication entitled International Directory of Human Development Research Centers prepared by UNESCO, the International Society for the Study of Behavioural Development (ISSBD), and the International Union of Psychological Sciences (IUPsyS). Information for the directory/database was compiled through a mail survey.

The major focus of the database/directory is on institutions whose activities promote an improvement in the situation of children, particularly the most deprived. Initially, 1340 institutions worldwide were approached but through information received through the questionnaire a further 545 new addresses were added, many of which will be contacted for the next update of the data base in 1993. Profiles of 670 institutes from 116 countries have been included in this first edition of the Directory, as well as comprehensive indexes and an analytic overview on the following pages. A Mini-Isis diskette version of the Directory will be made available. It is hoped that the database will help to create a working Interchild Network and thus facilitate contacts among institutions working in the field, convincing them of the real convergence of their interests.

YCF Regional Guides Project

An ambitious second phase to the Young Child and the Family data base has already been planned, namely the preparation and publication of a series of Regional Guides. The Scientific Advisory group proposed that the first Regional Guide should deal with Africa. The Regional Guides will give more detailed information on regional structures and help identify critical population and YCF issues specific to the chosen regions. They will also provide more details on institutions, funding and networking on the one hand, and on the other, successful information, communication and educational programmes in favour of the young child and the family.

Directory Overview and Analysis

Joanne Furman and Bernard Combes

Introduction

The Young Child and the Family Environment Directory is based on a survey of 670 institutions, representing a wide range of organizations, both non-governmental and governmental, involved in early childhood development and education. It aims to provide those working with and for children with an important information source, and to encourage and facilitate communication and information sharing between institutions and individuals active in improving the situation of children worldwide. Through its publication, it is hoped to offer a solution to the complex problem of information exchange on early childhood issues, and give a just insight into the national and international contributions to activities in the field of the young child and the family environment.

Contents

The Directory contains descriptions of the major activities of 670 institutions from 116 countries worldwide involved in early childhood development, along with pertinent data on their information activities. Indexes are included to facilitate information retrieval.

Methodology

The information presented in the Directory was compiled through a questionnaire survey sent to almost 1400 institutions throughout the world. This survey, which covered a period of approximately six months, was complemented by information from other sources.

Definitions

Family environment: for this publication, the working definition of the family formulated by the United Nations Committee on Civil and Political Rights, namely, "a group of persons ... regarded as a family under the legislation and practice of a State ", has been followed. ;

Early childhood development is defined as incorporating four main areas where action is particularly relevant to the development of the young child: nutrition and early childhood stimulation, child-rearing practices in situations of rapid social and economic change, childhood disabilities and preschool education.

Update

A sample questionnaire is included to encourage users to complement and update the information provided, and to offer those organizations not covered the chance to be considered for future editions. An evaluation form is also included to help improve future editions of the Directory. Users are kindly invited to complete this form and return it to the address provided.

Sections of the Directory

Statistical Tables:

Before presenting the different institutions in each country involved in the young child and the family environment activities, statistical tables provide an overview of the basic statistics available by country, general data of a demographic and economic nature, as well as data which directly concerns the 0-5 age group and their families. This information was drawn from the 1990 Statistical Wall Chart on Children prepared jointly by the United Nations, UNICEF, UNESCO and WHO. The category headings used are as follows:

Children under 5: Total number of children who are not yet 5 years old.

Infant Mortality Rate: Number of infant deaths under one year of age per 1000 live births.

Children under 5 who are underweight: Moderately and severely underweight children.

Female illiteracy: Percentage of the female population aged 15 and over who cannot read and write.

Total Fertility Rate: Total number of children who would be borne by a woman, if she were to live to the end of her child-bearing years, conforming to the existing fertility pattern of the country.

Current GNP per capita $US 1988: Estimated at current market prices in US dollars.

Access to local health care: Coverage by local health care within one hour's walk or travel.

The following symbols are used in the tables:

.. = Data not available

a/ = Data for the following countries are for 1975-1979: Haiti, Jamaica, St. Lucia, Nepal, Singapore, Yemen Arab Republic. In addition, all data for age 0-59 months, with the following exceptions: 3-36 months - Tunisia, Guatemala, Trinidad & Tobago, Colombia, Sri Lanka, Thailand; 0-36 months - Morocco, Togo; 0-71 months - Chile, Peru, Uruguay, Singapore; 3-59 months - Swaziland, Haiti, Yemen Arab Republic; 3-35 months - Egypt; 0-23 months - Madagascar, Dominica; 6-59 months - Malawi; 6-36 months - Senegal, Dominican Republic; 0-60 months - Uganda; 3-60 months - Zimbabwe; 6-71 months - Bangladesh; 12-59 months - India; 0-65 months - Democratic Yemen

b/ = Around 1985

c/ = Data covers only part of country

Profiles

The information included in the profiles presents the activities, both in their home country and in other countries, of each institution. The profiles are arranged alphabetically by country and by the official name of the institution. A reference number assigned to each profile is listed to the left of the official name. This number is used in the indexes to refer to the institution, rather than the page number on which the profile is found. Each profile contains three kinds of information about the institution: a) identification and contact fields; b) information concerning the focus of activities of the institution; c) the type of activities and services of each institution.

Identification fields

Practical information on each institution is provided, including the official name and translation; acronym when it exists; address; telephone, telex, cable and telefax numbers; contact name; foundation date; and the aims of the institution. The type of institution and its budget are listed along with the number of staff of the institution.

Major activity fields

The activities of the institutions are described in the fields Areas of interest and Types of activities. The first lists the institution's main focii of its actions. The second field lists the activities carried out by the institution in its own country and in other countries. When applicable, details of its grant-making and information activities are listed.

Indexes

A series of indexes is included at the end of the work to assist users in gaining direct access to the information provided, through the following indexes:

- an Acronym Index
- a Focus of Activities Index
- a Type of Activities Index
- a Geographical Coverage Index.

For example, institutions working on child-to-child projects are identified by profile number in the Focus of Activities Index under the heading Child-to-Child. The user can then refer back to the profiles to locate the institutions corresponding to these numbers.

In addition, an alphabetical listing of the official names of the institutions included in the Directory is provided, as well as a similar listing arranged by country in which the institution is located.

Analysis of responses and documents from the institutions

An analysis of the replies, brochures and documents sent by the institutions responding to the survey highlights three main areas of emphasis of action for YCF institutions in their field work:

- the Young Child

- the Family

- the Community

There are certain basic needs and services that all children require. Every child needs the following basic services:

1. Health care: primary health care for pregnant and nursing mothers, health education and disease control.

2. Safe, clean water supplies: safe clean water for drinking, cooking and bathing to prevent the spread of diseases caused by lack of sanitation.

3. Nutrition: enough food to prevent malnutrition and to aid physical and mental growth.

4. Education: early childhood education, primary, secondary and out-of-school learning provide literacy and enrich children's learning experiences.

5. Welfare services: half and full-day early childhood centres, youth organizations, parents-teachers' associations, self-help and income-generating projects will all improve community, family and children's centres programmes.

Provision of these five basic services to children are essential to ensure a fair start for children. Furthermore, all the above mentioned services require trained personnel and adequate facilities to implement these services.

However, to meet the needs of young children and create an appropriate environment for the healthy development of children, YCF institutions have come to realize that their actions need to involve not only the children but also parents, families and communities. Furthermore, these actions should take into account the physical, intellectual, sociocultural and economic aspects of the environment in which the child lives, thus involving aspects that not only concern the child itself, but also its immediate family and community. YCF institutions thus base their strategies on some underlying principles, including:

- gradual improvement in the quality of life of all members of the community: the child, the parents and the family.

- improvement of the ability of individuals, families and communities to solve their problems by using locally available resources and identifying external factors which can contribute to their solution.

- preparing children, parents, families to become active participants in the process of community development. As such, all actions taken are beneficial not only to those directly involved in programmes, but also to all members of the community.

The actions of YCF institutions clearly emphasize the interdependance between actions aimed at children, those focusing on the family and those concerned with the community. Thus, all three aspects need to be included in any discussion of YCF institutions' activities and are part of the programme strategies of most YCF institutions.

Therefore, the actions and programmes of YCF institutions are based on complementary approaches and emphasis. These include, among others:

- provision and delivery of services, such as day care, guidance, health care or training.

- education and training on adequate child development for professionals, parents and other caregivers.

- promotion of family and community welfare and development (sanitation, food security, or income-generation initiatives).

- strengthening of local/national resources and capabilities (training, skills improvement or legislation advocacy).

- advocacy of child development programmes and children's rights.

The YCF programmes features discussed before can be summarized in the following diagram:

Based on the responses to the YCF questionnaire, the following figures provide an overall view of current practices in the YCF field. Looking at the focii of the institutions' actions, the types of the activities and the geographical coverage of their actions, these figures give an indication of topics and activities that receive great or little attention.

Aperçu et Analyse du Répertoire

Joanne Furman et Bernard Combes

Introduction

Le Répertoire sur le Jeune Enfant et l'Environnement Familial est basé sur une enquête conduite auprès de 670 organisations, non gouvernementales et gouvernementales, actives dans le domaine du développement et de l'éducation de la prime enfance. Ce Répertoire a pour objectif d'offrir une importante source d'information à ceux qui travaillent avec et pour les enfants, d'encourager et de faciliter la communication et l'échange d'informations entre organisations et personnes cherchant à améliorer la situation des enfants dans le monde. Par le biais de cette publication, nous espérons apporter une solution au problème complexe de l'échange d'information sur les problèmes de la prime enfance, et de présenter une vision objective des contributions nationales et internationales apportées aux activités relatives au jeune enfant et à l'environnement familial.

Contenu

Le Répertoire décrit les principales activités de 670 organisations de 116 pays du monde, actives dans le domaine du développement de la prime enfance, et donne des renseignements utiles sur leurs activités d'information. Des index sont inclus pour faciliter la recherche sélective d'informations.

Méthodologie

Les informations présentées dans le Répertoire ont été rassemblées au moyen de questionnaires envoyés à 1400 organisations dans le monde entier. L'information obtenue grâce à cette enquête, qui a duré environ six mois, a été complétée par des renseignements provenant d'autres sources.

Définitions

Les définitions suivantes ont été choisies pour cette publication:

L'environnement familial représente la famille sous toutes ses formes - traditionnelle, étendue, nucléaire et monoparentale - c'est-à-dire le groupe de personnes qui s'occupent et prennent soin d'un enfant.

Le développement de la prime enfance est défini comme regroupant quatre domaines principaux où des actions sont particulièrement importantes pour le développement du jeune enfant: la nutrition et l'éveil du jeune enfant, la puériculture dans des conditions de changement social et économique rapide, les handicaps de l'enfant et l'éducation préscolaire.

Mise à jour

Un exemplaire du questionnaire est joint pour permettre aux utilisateurs de compléter et de mettre à jour l'information fournie, et d'offrir aux organisations non-incluses la possibilité d'être considéré pour de futures éditions. Un formulaire d'évaluation est également joint pour faciliter l'amélioration des futures éditions du Répertoire. Les utilisateurs sont invités à le remplir et à le retourner à l'adresse indiquée.

Les Tableaux Statistiques

Avant de décrire les différentes organisations dans chaque pays actives dans le domaine du jeune enfant et de l'environnement familial, des tableaux statistiques offrent une vue d'ensemble des statistiques de base disponibles par pays, des données générales de nature démographique et économique, ainsi que des données qui concernent directement le groupe d'âge 0-5 ans et leurs familles. Ces renseignements sont extraits du Tableau Statistique sur les Enfants 1990 préparé conjointement par les Nations Unies, l'UNICEF, l'UNESCO et l'OMS. Les intitulés des catégories utilisés dans le Tableau Statistique ont été conservés pour cette publication:

Enfants de Moins de 5 Ans: Nombre total d'enfants qui n'ont pas atteint 5 ans.

Taux de Mortalité Infantile: Nombre de décès d'enfants de moins d'un an pour 1000 naissances vivantes.

Enfants de Moins de 5 Ans de Poids Insuffisant: Enfants qui souffrent de malnutrition modérée ou grave.

Taux d'analphabétisme des femmes: Pourcentage de la population féminine âgée de 15 ans ou plus ne sachant ni lire ni écrire.

Indice Synthétique de Fécondité: Nombre total d'enfants que mettrait au monde une femme qui vivrait jusqu'à la fin de ses années de procréation correspondant au taux actuel de fécondité dans le pays.

PNB actuel par habitant ($US 1988): Estimé aux prix courants du marché en dollars des Etats-Unis.

Accés à des services de santé locaux: Système de santé local à moins d'une heure de marche ou de transport.

Les Profils:

L'information incluse dans les profils décrit les activités, dans leur propre pays et dans d'autres pays, de chaque organisation. Les profils sont classés par ordre alphabétique du nom de pays en anglais et du nom officiel de l'organisation. Un code de référence, attribué à chaque profil, est indiqué à la gauche du nom officiel de l'organisation. Ce code est utilisé dans les index pour représenter l'organisation, plutôt que la page correspondante au profil. Chaque profil contient trois types de renseignements sur l'organisation: a) les rubriques d'identité; b) des informations sur les secteurs d'activités de l'organisation; c) des informations sur les types d'activités et de services entrepris par l'organisation.

Les rubriques d'identité

Des renseignements pratiques sur chaque organisation sont fournis, y compris le nom officiel et la traduction de celui-ci; le sigle si celui-ci existe; l'adresse; les numéros de téléphone, télex, télégramme et télécopie; le nom de la personne à contacter; l'année de création; et les objectifs de l'organisation. Le type d'organisation et son budget sont indiqués ainsi que l'effectif du personnel.

Les rubriques sur les activités principales

Les activités des organisations sont décrites sous les rubriques Secteurs d'Activités et Types d'Activités. La première indique les principaux domaines d'activités de l'organisation. La seconde liste les activités entreprises par l'organisation dans son pays et dans d'autres pays. Quand cela est possible, des renseignements sur ses activités d'allocation de subventions et d'information sont fournis.

Les Index

Une série d'index est incluse à la fin de cette publication pour permettre aux utilisateurs d'avoir accès directement à l'information fournie, grâce aux index suivants:

- un Index des Sigles des Organisations
- un Index des Secteurs d'Activités
- un Index des Types d'Activités
- un Index des Zones Géographiques.

Par exemple, les organisations travaillant sur des projets relatifs à l'enfant pour l'enfant sont indiquées par leur code de référence dans l'Index des Secteurs d'Activités sous l'entête L'Enfant pour l'Enfant. L'utilisateur peut alors se reporter aux profils pour trouver les organisations correspondant à ces codes.

De plus, une liste alphabétique des noms officiels des organisations incluses dans le Répertoire est fournie, ainsi qu'une liste similaire classée par pays où l'organisation a son siège.

Analyse des réponses

L'analyse des réponses, brochures et documents envoyés par les organisations ayant répondu à l'enquête YCF met en valeur trois principaux secteurs d'action pour ces organisations dans leur travail:

- le Jeune Enfant

- la Famille

- la Communauté

Les enfants ont des besoins qui requièrent certains services fondamentaux, parmi eux les services suivants:

1. Soins médicaux: soins de santé primaires pour les mères enceintes et allaitant des nourissons, les enfants, éducation sanitaire et contrôle des maladies.

2. Accés à de l'eau propre et potable: de l'eau propre et potable pour boire, faire la cuisine, se laver pour empêcher la propagation des maladies à cause d'une mauvaise hygiène.

3. Nutrition: assez de nourriture pour empêcher la malnutrition et assurer une bonne croissance physique et mentale.

4. Education: l'éducation de la prime enfance, l'éducation primaire, secondaire et la formation extra-scolaire permettent l'alphabétisation et enrichissent les expériences pédagogiques de l'enfant.

5. Services d'accueil/sociaux: des centres pour la prime enfance, des organisations de jeunes, des associations de parents-enseignants, des projets d'auto-assistance et générateurs de revenus permettront tous une amélioration des programmes pour la communauté, la famille et les centres d'enfants.

Fournir ces cinq services fondamentaux aux enfants est essentiel pour leur assurer un bon départ dans la vie. De plus, tous les services cités ci-dessus requièrent un personnel formé et des installations adéquates pour assurer ces services.

Cependant, pour satisfaire aux besoins du jeune enfant et créer un environnement propice au développement sain des enfants, les organisations YCF en sont venues à réaliser que leurs actions ne doivent pas seulement impliquer les enfants mais aussi les parents, les familles et les communautés. De plus, ces actions doivent aussi prendre en considération les aspects physiques, intellectuels, socioculturels et économiques du milieu dans lequel l'enfant vit; et ainsi incorporer des aspects qui ne concernent pas seulement l'enfant lui-même, mais aussi sa proche famille et sa communauté.

Les organisations YCF basent donc leurs stratégies sur certains principes de base, y compris:

- l'amélioration graduelle de la qualité de vie de tous les membres de la communauté: l'enfant, les parents et la famille.

- l'amélioration de la capacité des individus, familles et communautés à résoudre leurs problèmes en utilisant les ressources disponibles localement et en identifiant les facteurs externes qui peuvent contribuer à leurs solutions.

- la préparation des enfants, parents et familles à devenir des participants actifs dans le processus du développement communautaire. Ainsi, toutes les actions entreprises sont bénéfiques non seulement à ceux directement impliqués dans les programmes, mais aussi à tous les membres de la communauté.

Les actions des organisations YCF mettent clairement en valeur l'interdépendance entre les actions concernant les enfants, celles se préoccupant de la famille et celles s'intéressant à la communauté. Ainsi ces trois orientations ensemble doivent être incluses dans toutes discussions des activités de ces organisations et font partie de la plupart de leurs méthodes d'action.

Les actions et programmes des organisations YCF sont donc basés sur des approches et points de vue complémentaires. Ceux-ci comprennent, entre autres:

- fournir et assurer des services, tels que l'accueil, l'orientation, les soins médicaux ou la formation.

- éducation et formation en matière de développement approprié de l'enfant pour les professionnels, les parents et autres personnes s'occupant des enfants.

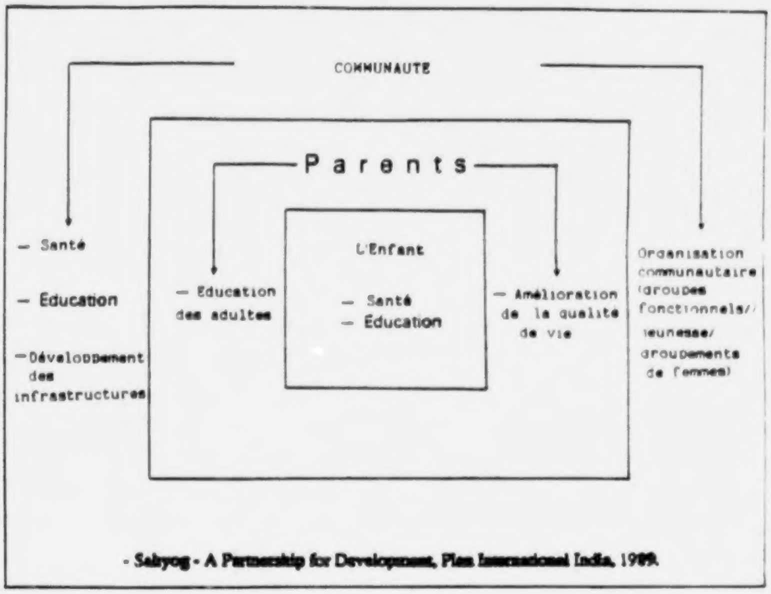
- promotion du bien-être et du développement familial et communautaire (hygiène, sécurité alimentaire ou activités génératrices de revenus).

- promotion du bien-être et du développement familial et communautaire (hygiène, sécurité alimentaire ou activités génératrices de revenus).

- renforcement des ressources et capacités locales/nationales (formation, développement des compétences ou soutien de politiques).

- soutien des programmes d'aide à l'enfance et des droits des enfants.

Les principes de base des programmes YCF décrits précedemment peuvent être résumés par le diagramme suivant:



COMMUNAUTE
— Santé
— Education
— Développement des infrastructures
Organisation communautaire (groupes fonctionnels/ jeunesse/ groupements de femmes)
Parents
— Education des adultes
— Amélioration de la qualité de vie
L'Enfant
— Santé
— Education

Basées sur les réponses au questionnaire YCF, les figures sur les pages 18-20 offrent un aperçu général des pratiques actuelles dans le secteur YCF. S'intéressant aux secteurs d'activités des organisations, aux types d'activités et aux zones géographiques de leurs actions, ces figures donnent une indication des sujets et activités qui recoivent beaucoup/peu d'attention. Pour une traduction des descripteurs utilisés, veuillez consulter les pages 27, 28.

STATISTICAL TABLES: EXPLANATORY NOTE

The data presented in these tables was obtained from the 1990 Statistical Wall Chart on Children: Early Child Development and Learning Achievement, prepared by the Statistical Office of the United Nations Department of International Economic and Social Affairs in collaboration with UNICEF, Unesco and WHO.

The Young Child

The status of young children is reported in terms of the infant mortality rate and the percentage who are underweight. Infant mortality not only indicates the probability of a child surviving to the age of one, but also more generally reflects the risk of survivors falling ill. The percentage underweight reflects the level of malnutrition, which not only slows physical growth, but also retards psycho-social development of the child.

Children under 5: Total number of children, both boys and girls, who have not reached their fifth birthday.

Infant Mortality Rate: Number of infant deaths under one year of age per 1000 live births.

Children under 5 who are underweight: Moderately and severely underweight children, i.e., those below minus two standard deviations from median weight for age of reference populations.

The Family

The family's impact on a young child is illustrated in terms of total fertility and illiteracy of females. High fertility generally reflects closely spaced births, which in the context of low income, leads to the exhaustion of mothers and the division of their limited time and resources among many children. Female literacy has a major bearing not only on psychosocial development, but also on the provision of appropriate health and nutrition support to the young child.

Female illiteracy: Percentage of the female population aged 15 and over who cannot read and write.

Total Fertility Rate: Total number of children who would be borne by a woman, if she were to live to the end of her child-bearing years, conforming to the existing fertility pattern of the country.

The Community

Access to health services and Gross National Product (GNP) generally indicate the community support available. Health services provide direct support for the young child, such as vaccinations and medicines, as well as support and advice for the family. GNP is a broad measure of the economic situation of a country and reflects the likely existence of community infrastructures including schools and roads.

Current GNP per capita $US 1988: Estimated at current market prices in US dollars.

Access to local health care: Coverage by local health care within one hour's walk or travel.

TABLEAUX STATISTIQUES: NOTE EXPLICATIVE

Les données présentées dans ces tableaux proviennent du Tableau Statistique Mural sur les Enfants 1990: Développement du Jeune Enfant et Réussite Scolaire, préparé par le Bureau des Statistiques du Département des Affaires Economiques et Sociales Internationales des Nations Unies en collaboration avec l'UNICEF, l'Unesco et l'OMS.

Le Jeune Enfant

La situation des jeunes enfants est exprimée en termes du taux de mortalité infantile et du pourcentage de ceux qui ont un poids insuffisant pour leur âge. La mortalité infantile n'indique pas seulement la probabilité qu'un enfant survive jusqu'à l'âge d'un an, mais aussi illustre les risques que ceux qui survivent tombent malade. Le pourcentage d'enfants de poids insuffisant montre le niveau de malnutrition, qui non seulement ralentiT la croissance physique, mais aussi retarde le développement psycho-social de l'enfant.

Enfants de Moins de 5 Ans: Nombre total d'enfants (garçons et filles) qui n'ont pas atteint 5 ans.

Taux de Mortalité Infantile: Nombre de décès d'enfants de moins d'un an pour 1000 naissances vivantes.

Enfants de Moins de 5 Ans de Poids Insuffisant: Enfants qui souffrent de malnutrition modérée ou grave, c'est-à-dire dont le poids est inférieur à moins de deux écarts-type du poids moyen par rapport à l'âge de la population de réference.

La Famille

L'impact de la famille sur le jeune enfant est illustré par le taux de fécondité et celui d'analphabétisme des femmes. Un taux élevé de fécondité reflète généralement des naissances trop rapprochées, qui, dans les ménages pauvres, résulte en des mères fatiguées et obligées de partager le peu de temps et de ressources qu'elles ont entre beaucoup d'enfants. L'alphabétisation des femmes joue un rôle prépondérant non seulement dans le développement psychosocial de l'enfant, mais aussi dans l'apport d'un soutien adéquat au niveau de la santé et de la nutrition du jeune enfant.

Taux d'analphabétisme des femmes: Pourcentage de la population féminine âgée de 15 ans ou plus ne sachant ni lire ni écrire.

Indice Synthétique de Fécondité: Nombre total d'enfants que mettrait au monde une femme qui vivrait jusqu'à la fin de ses années de procréation correspondant au taux actuel de fécondité dans le pays.

La Communauté

L'accés à des services de santé et le Produit National Brut (PNB) indiquent généralement le soutien communautaire disponible pour le jeune enfant. Les services de santé fournissent une aide directe à l'enfant, par le biais des vaccinations et des médicaments, ainsi qu'un soutien et des conseils pour la famille. Le PNB est un indicateur général de la situation économique d'un pays et reflète l'existence probable d'infrastructures communautaires comme des écoles et des routes.

PNB actuel par habitant ($US 1988): Estimé aux prix courants du marché en dollars des Etats-Unis.

Accès à des services de santé locaux: Système de santé local à moins d'une heure de marche ou de transport.

 Name and Title:

 Organization:

 For what purpose did you use the Directory?

 Which parts of the Directory did you find useful? Please note using numbers 1 to 3
(1 = very useful, 2 = useful, 3 = not useful)

[ ] Profiles: general information about the institution
[ ] Profiles: information about the institution's information activities
[ ] Indexes

 How easy are the Indexes to use? Please circle one:
Very easy / Satisfactory / Difficult

 How clear are the instructions on using the Directory? Please circle one:
Very clear / Satisfactory / Unclear

 Within the profiles, what additional information about each institution would you like to see included in future editions?

Please list names and addresses of any other instutions involved in the young child and the family environment activities you think should be approached for inclusion in future editions. Use a seperate sheet if necessary.

Additional comments:

Thank you for your help.

FORMULAIRE D'EVALUATION

Veuillez faire des photocopies si des exemplaires supplémentaires sont nécessaires pour plusieurs utilisateurs.

 Nom et Titre:

 Organisation:

 Dans quel but avez-vous utilisé le Répertoire?

 Quelles sections du Répertoire avez-vous trouvé utiles? Indiquez les à l'aide des chiffres 1 à 3
(1 = trés utile, 2 = utile, 3 = inutile)

[ ] Profils: renseignements généraux sur l'organisation
[ ] Profils: renseignements sur les activités d'information de l'organisation
[ ] Index

 Les Index sont-ils faciles à utiliser? Cochez un des choix:
Très faciles / Satisfaisants / Difficiles à utiliser

 Les instructions pour utiliser le Répertoire sont-elles claires? Cochez un des choix:
Très claires / Satisfaisantes / Difficiles à comprendre

 Dans les profils des organisations, quels renseignements supplémentaires aimeriez-vous voir inclus dans de futures éditions?

Veuillez indiquer les noms et adresses d'autres organisations actives dans le domaine du jeune enfant et de l'environnement familial qui selon vous devraient être contactées pour de futures éditions. Utilisez une autre feuille si nécessaire.

Commentaires éventuels:

Merci pour votre aide.
